Intelligence and Surveillance

Intelligence is about reducing uncertainty. Reducing uncertainty requires that intelligence obtains information that entities prefer to conceal, or is available through openly available sources such as the internet, news media, social media and archival sources.

Intelligence in general can be thought of as the complex process of understanding meaning in available information. A typical goal of intelligence is to establish facts and then to develop precise, reliable, and valid inferences (hypotheses, estimations, conclusions, or predictions) for use in decision making or operational planning.

Intelligence also identifies strengths and weaknesses and consequent opportunities and threats. There can be many distinct levels, ranging from friendly competition to malicious threat actors. Also, context aggregated through intelligence-led means determines whether another party is an opponent or an ally.

Put simply, actionable intelligence puts you ahead of the curve, whether for business purposes or detecting nefarious threats and acts.

Surveillance is the act of monitoring behaviour and communications to gather information and subsequent Intelligence and can be carried out in many ways, including pattern of life analysis, open-source reviews, or covert observations.

MPS offers a full range of intelligence and surveillance services that are conducted in accordance with confidentiality, privacy and legislative requirements, and using appropriately experienced and licensed staff; providing entities with peace of mind and informed decision making.
